

“Lily’s family could only bring one bag when they had to stay in the shelter,” Sofia explained. “But her mom kept some ribbons—colorful pieces of home. Touching the ribbon calmed Lily down even when they had to move around every night.”

“Eventually the ribbon would fall off, but she’d have more,” Lily added. “Every time she tied one on, she’d say, ‘We can get through anything if we’re together. WE GOT THIS!’ Then I’d get a kiss on my nose!”
